You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 11-15 are based on the following passage.

How fit are your teeth? Are you lazy about brushing them? Never fear: An inventor is on the case. An electric toothbrush senses how long and how well you brush, and it lets you track your performance on your phone.

The Kolibree toothbrush was exhibited at the International Consumer Electronics Show in Las Vegas this week. It senses how it is moved and can send the information to an Android phone or iPhone via a Bluetooth wireless connection.

The toothbrush will be able to teach you to brush right (don't forget the insides of the teeth!) and make sure you're brushing long enough. "It's kind of like having a dentist actually watch your brushing on a day-to-day basis," says Thomas Serval, the French inventor.

The toothbrush will also be able to talk to other applications on your phone, so developers could, for instance, create a game controlled by your toothbrush. You could score points for beating monsters among your teeth. “We try to make it smart but also fun,” Serval says.

Serval says he was inspired by his experience as a father. He would come home from work and ask his kids if they had brushed their teeth. They said “yes”, but Serval would find their toothbrush heads dry. He decided he needed a brush that really told him how well his children brushed.

The company says the Kolibree will go on sale this summer, for $99 to $199, developing on features. The U. S. is the first target market.

Serval says that one day, it'll be possible to replace the brush on the handle with a brushing unit that also has a camera. The camera can even examine holes in your teeth while you brush.

11. Which is one of the feature of the Kolibree toothbrush?

- A. It can sense how users brush their teeth.
- B. It can track users' school performance.
- C. It can detect users' fear of seeing a dentist.
- D. It can help users find their phones.

12. What can we learn from Serval's words in Paragraph 3?

- A. You will find it enjoyable to see a dentist.
- B. You should see your dentist on a day-to-day basis.
- C. You can brush with the Kolibree as if guided by a dentist.
- D. You'd like a dentist to watch you brush your teeth every day.

13. What is Paragraph 5 mainly about?

- A. How Serval found out his kids lied to him.
- B. Why Serval thought brushing teeth was necessary.
- C. How Serval taught his kids to brush their teeth.
- D. What inspired Serval to invent the toothbrush

14. What can we infer about Serval's children?

- A. They were unwilling to brush their teeth.
- B. They often failed to clean their toothbrushes.
- C. They preferred to use a toothbrush with a dry head.
- D. They liked brushing their teeth after Serval came home.

15. What can we learn about the future development of the Kolibree?

- A. The brush handle will be removed.
- B. A mobile phone will be built into it.
- C. It will be used to fill holes in teeth.
- D. It will be able to check users' teeth.

Passage 2

Questions 16-20 are based on the following passage.

The common cold is the world's most widespread illness, which is probably why there are more myths about it than any of the other illnesses.

The most widespread mistake of all is that colds are caused by cold. They are not. They are caused by viruses (病毒) passing on from person to person. You catch a cold by coming into contact, directly or indirectly, with someone who already has one. If cold causes colds, it would be reasonable to expect the Eskimos to suffer from them forever. But they do not. And in isolated Arctic regions explorers have reported being free from colds until coming into contact again with infected (感染的) people from the outside world by way of packages and mail dropped from airplanes.

At the Common Cold Research Unit in England, volunteers took part in Experiments. After taking hot baths, they put on bathing suits, allowed themselves to be doused (浸入) with cold water, and then stood about dripping wet in drafty (通风的) rooms. Some wore wet socks all day while others exercised in the rain until close to exhaustion. Not one of the volunteers came down with a cold unless a cold virus was actually dropped in his nose.

If, then, cold and wet have nothing to do with catching colds, why are they more frequent in the winter? One explanation offered by scientists is that people tend to stay together indoors more in cold weather than at other times, and this makes it easier for cold viruses to be passed on.

No one has yet found a cure for the cold. There are drugs and pain suppressors (止痛片) such as aspirin, but all they do is to relieve the symptoms.

16. We can know from the second paragraph that _____.

- A. the idea that cold leads to colds doesn't stand up
- B. colds are more serious than other illnesses
- C. the Eskimos never have colds
- D. colds are full of mistakes

17. The experiments mentioned in Paragraph 3 show that _____.

- A. taking hot baths made the volunteers easy to be tired
B. being doused with cold water did harm to one's body
C. people who would like to exercise in the rain got colds more easily
D. it was viruses not wet and cold that made people have colds
18. Which of the following is true according to the passage?
A. All colds are caused by cold.
B. Staying together indoors makes it easier for viruses to pass on.
C. People come down with a cold if they feel cold in winter.
D. Some drugs can cure the cold.
19. What does the passage mainly discuss?
A. The experiments on colds.
B. The myths about colds.
C. The reason and the way people catch colds.
D. The spread of common colds.
20. The passage may be taken from _____.
A. a storybook
B. a travel guide
C. a teaching material
D. a science magazine

You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the centre.

Passage 1

Questions 11-15 are based on the following passage.

A new study suggests a link between exposure to greenery and reduced desires for alcohol cigarette and junk food.

The study is the first to investigate the possible relationships between exposure to nature and desires and negative emotions. Researchers at the University of Plymouth's School of Psychology surveyed 149 respondents (应答者) aged 21 to 65 about the proportion (比例) of green space in their neighborhood, the presence of green views from their home, their access to a garden and how often they use public green space. The study also asked questions about experiences with depression and anxiety, as well as desires for things like caffeine, alcohol and nicotine. Participants rated the intensity (强度), imagery, and intrusiveness (侵扰性) of their desires on an 11-point scale.

Researchers found the presence of visible green space contributed to decreased desires for junk food. The effect was particularly noticeable when more than 25 percent of a respondent's view was greenery.

Previous scholarship(学术研究)has dealt mostly with exercise in nature: A 2015 study out of the University of Michigan found 90- minute group nature walks were effective at combatting depression and relieving other mood disorders. But for people who struggle with accessibility or don't have time for a 90-minute walk, this new study suggests just looking out a window at a tree can help fight off a bad habit.

"It has been known for some time that being outdoors in nature is linked to a person's well-being," lead author Leanne Martin said in a statement. But for there to be a similar association with desires from simply being able to see green space adds a new dimension to the previous research.

A 2018 study from Denmark's Aarhus University for example, found that. Having access to green space throughout childhood decreased a person's risk of developing mental health problems as an adult.

11. What does the second paragraph mainly talk about?

- A. The results of the new study.
- B. The purpose of the new study.
- C. The significance of the new study.
- D. The content of the new study.

12. What does the underlined word "combatting" in paragraph 4 probably mean?

- A. Reducing.
- B. Developing.
- C. Understanding.
- D. Encouraging

13. According to the passage, the new study ____.

- A. mainly referred to exercise in nature
- B. has enriched the previous research to some degree
- C. was carried out by the University of Michigan
- D. found exposure to greenery helped cure mental problems

14. Which section of a newspaper may this passage appear?

- A. Entertainment
- B. Business World
- C. Tech & Science
- D. Environment

15. Who is the main author?

- A. Leanne Martin
- B. Lee Mart
- C. Denmark's Aarhus

Passage 1

Questions 11-15 are based on the following passage

Everyone needs friends. There is an old saying, "Friends are God's way of taking care of us." But how do you find real friendship and keep it?

The American writer Sally Seamans tells young students some smart ways to find friends. Sally says finding friendship is just like planting a tree. You plant the seed (种子) and take care of it to make it grow.

First, you should choose a friend. What makes a good friend? It is not because a person has money or good looks. A good friend should be kind and patient. For example, if you have a bad day, a good friend should listen to your complaints and do his or her best to help. To make a friend, you can't be too shy. You should make each other happy.

But things can't always be happy. Even the best friends have fights. What should you do when you have a fight with your friend? You have to talk to him or her. When there is no one around, have an honest talk. If he or she doesn't want to talk, you could write a letter. There are three steps to being friends again:

Tell him or her how you are feeling; say what your friend has done wrong, and explain why you did this or that; remember that friendship is the most important thing in your life.

11. Sally wants to tell students the ways to _____.
A. find friends
B. plant trees
C. get angry
D. keep fit
12. What makes good friends? A good friend should _____.
A. be lovely and cool

C. have lots of money
D. have good looks
13. According to the text, you can _____ your friend after a fight.
A. buy a present for
B. never say a word to
C. have dinner with
D. write a letter to
14. How many steps are there to be friends again?
A. Only one.
B. Two.
C. Three
D. Four
15. Which is the best title for the text?
A. Teenagers and friendship
B. The Good Friends Around You
C. The Trouble of Growing Up
D. The Care and Keeping of Friends

Passage 2

Questions 16-20 are based on the following passage

Over 400 endangered olive ridley sea turtles have been washed ashore near Chennai, India, in just two weeks - a death event that hasn't been seen in over 20 years. These migratory turtles, known to travel thousands of miles to nest (筑巢) on India's eastern coast, face combined threats from habitat loss, illegal fishing and climate pressures.

Shravan Krishnan, a conservation volunteer, noted Chennai's coastline typically records 100-200 adult turtle deaths annually .“This year, we've already crossed 200 deaths in two weeks, ” he said, adding that only four nests have been found this season because the eggs are damaged by beach-goers or eaten by dogs. Meanwhile, Odisha state -- home to the mass nesting phenomenon Arribada- hosts over 500, 000 turtles yearly, yet merely 0.1% of baby turtles survive to adulthood.

Experts blame the sudden rise in deaths on illegal trawl (拖网) fishing. Despite a 2016 rule limiting trawlers within five miles of shore during nesting season and requiring turtle excluder devices (TEDs) in nets, people don't follow the rules well. "TEDs reduce catch efficiency, so fishers throw them away," said marine (海洋的) specialist Shantanu Kalambi. Trawl nets trap turtles underwater, killing them by making them unable to breathe underwater within hours.

Olive ridleys, already at risk, face existential threats: decreasing nesting beaches, plastic pollution, and rising temperatures that change the number of male and female baby turtles. Light pollution further confuses newborns, leading them away from the sea. Wildlife guardian Manish Meena emphasized efforts to educate fishers and send out coastguards, but enforcement gaps continue.

The species' survival is critical to marine ecosystems. By eating jellyfish, olive ridleys prevent rapid increases in the jellyfish population that could upset the balance of fishing industries. "They've lived well for millions of years," Kalambi warned, "yet human actions now push them toward extinction."

With over 900 turtle deaths recorded in 2014, the current crisis highlights the need for stronger laws and habitat protection. Even as conservationists work to save nests and stop illegal fishing, the future of these ancient creatures remains uncertain.

16. What do figures in paragraph 2 indicate about the turtles?
- A. Their behaviors are complex.
 - B. Their nesting sites are well-protected.
 - C. They face severe survival conditions.
 - D. They are seldom affected by humans.
17. What is the function of TEDs in trawl nets?
- A. To reduce plastic pollution.
 - B. To increase catch efficiency.
 - C. To protect turtles from being trapped.
 - D. To make fishers follow the fishing rules.
18. Why does the author mention jellyfish?
- A. To argue against fishing industries.

- B. To show turtles' role in marine balance.
C. To highlight climate impact on jellyfish.
D. To compare jellyfish to other turtle threats.
19. What can we infer from the text?
A. Current protection laws are not strictly enforced.
B. Most baby turtles survive to adulthood in Odisha.
C. Trawl fishing has decreased significantly since 2016.
D. Light pollution is the primary threat to newborn turtles.
20. What is the main purpose of the passage?
A. To introduce the migration patterns of olive ridley sea turtles.
B. To highlight the urgent threats facing olive ridley sea turtles and the need for conservation.
C. To compare the nesting conditions of turtles in Chennai and Odisha.
D. To criticize the fishing industry for illegal practices.

Section B (20 points)

Directions: In this section there is a passage with ten blanks. You are required to select one word for each blank from a list of choices given in a word bank following the passage. Read the passage through carefully before making your choices. Each choice in the bank is identified by a letter. Please mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the centre. You may not use any of the words in the bank more than once.
