Passage 1

Questions 11-15 are based on the following passage.

It was a case of emergency. The four-year-old girl awoke and smelled smoke. She couldn't wake her mother, so she dialed "zero". An operator immediately called the fire department. Help was sent, and a tragedy avoided.

Days before this emergency, the mother had taught her child how to telephone for help. Children as young as two and one-half years old can be taught to use the phone in emergency situations. Here are some points.

Memorizing certain facts is important. Teach your children their names, and the section of town where you live. Try to keep what they learn within their abilities. Simple information, learned well, is better than difficult information only partly learned.

Be sure your children know how to use the telephone. They should be taught to dial "zero" for the operator, at the very least. And they should be taught to dial "911" if it is used in your town.

Practice over a period of several days. Over-learning is necessary so the child can act automatically in case of emergency.

If you would like a booklet giving instructions on calling for help, write Telephone For Help, BOX 99, Bowling Green Station, New York, NY 10004.

11. From this passage, why is it a good idea for children to learn how to use the telephone?

A. Children have fun dialing.

B. Emergencies happen without warning.

C. Children can wake their parents.

D. Dialing can help children with their math study.

12. Based on this passage, over-learning is good because _____.

A. simple information is used

B. children should know their names

C. it helps children act automatically

D. difficult information is only partly learned

13. Paragraph 4 talks about dialing "911". This number is probably _____.

A. the operator

B. an emergency number

C. a practice number for children

D. used to keep children calm

14. One thing the passage does NOT tell you to do is _____.

A. call your neighbor

B. practice several times

C. teach children how to use the telephone

D. have children memorize some simple facts

15. What is the main idea of the passage?

A. Give instructions on calling for help.

B. Partly-learned information is useless.

C. Teach children how to deal with emergencies.

D. Keep what children learn within their abilities.

Passage 2

Questions 16-20 are based on the following passage.

Overhead bridges are found in many parts of Beijing, especially in places where traffic is very heavy and crossing the road is dangerous.

The purpose of these bridges is to enable pedestrians to cross roads safely. Overhead bridges are used to very much the same way as zebra crossings. They are more efficient although less convenient because people have to climb up a long flight of steps. This is inconvenient especially to older people. When pedestrians use an overhead bridge, they do not hold up traffic. However, when they cross a busy road using a zebra crossing, traffic is held up. This is why the government has built many overhead bridges to help pedestrians and to keep traffic moving at the same time.

The government of Beijing has spent a large amount of money on building these bridges. For their own safety, pedestrians should be encouraged to use them instead of risking their lives by dashing across the road. Old people, however, may find it a little difficult climbing up and down the steps, but it is still much safer than walking across the road with all the danger of moving traffic.

Overhead bridges serve a very useful purpose. Pedestrians, both old and young, should make it a habit to use them. This will prevent unnecessary accidents and loss of life.

16. What is the advantage of overhead bridges mentioned in this passage?

A. They are safer for pedestrians and can keep traffic moving at the same time.

B. Pedestrians can climb up and have a view of the city.

C. Taller trucks can pass under them.

D. They are easier and more convenient for the pedestrians.

17. Why were overhead bridges built in Beijing?

A. Because they save money for the government.

B. Because they provide an easy way for the drivers to cross the road.

C. Because they prevent traffic from being held up.

D. Because they save time for the pedestrians.

18. Which of the following statements is TRUE according to the passage?

A. Overhead bridges are found in places where traffic is heavy.

B. Overhead bridges are only found in the centre of Beijing.

C. Overhead bridges are found in many parts of big cities in China.

D. Overhead bridges are found in every part of Beijing.

19. The underlined words "a zebra crossing" probably mean _____.

A. a safe place across a road for old people to rest in

B. a wild animal from Africa that looks like a horse with broad dark brown and white stripes on its body

C. a safe place across a road for zebras to walk across the road

D. a safe place across a road for pedestrians to walk across the road

20. What is the writer's attitude towards overhead bridges?

A. It is inconvenient to older people to walk across the road.

B. To build overhead bridges is the business of the government

C. An overhead bridge is more beautiful than a zebra crossing.

D. It is much safer for pedestrians though climbing up and down the steps may be a little difficult.

Questions 21-30 are based on the following passage.

A friend of mine once asked me " Why should a Chinese take time to learn a language that is not his own?" Obviously he has __21__ in learning a foreign language. He is not the only one who is mentally against English learning. One reason, as I suspect, is the way English is taught. The emphasis on memorization is such that no __22__ is left in the process of learning, only endless annoyance. What students are presented in the classroom is not the language in real-world __23__. A Chinese student with extremely high scores for American standardized tests was __24__ into one of the most famous universities. But his professors soon found out that he could __25__ understand the lesson. Suspecting that he __26__ in the tests, the school demanded he repeat them. Again, he passed with high scores. Not till then did they realize that the student had mastered the techniques for dealing with the tests, not __27__ the skills of using the language.

Many people take TOFEL, IELTS, GRE, annual Band 4 and Band 6 exams not because they work in areas where English is a __28__ tool, but because they have to do it for job promotion or enrollment in certain programs.

Must English learning be such a pain?

Create a(n) __29__ where learning English is natural and painless. Don't make it compulsory for people whose work or major does not require it. China will not become more __30__ by adding millions of people who can only say a simple "Hello."
