The Importance of Time Management

Many students describe their college days as the best time in their lives. However, not every student can manage their time well. Therefore, I think it necessary for us college students to manage our time efficiently.

For one thing, if we can manage time well, a lot of time and energy will be saved. For another thing, good time management will be beneficial to our study, work as well as our daily life.

As college students, what should we do to manage our time well? From my own standpoint, first of all, we should arrange the learning time efficiently to ensure excellent academic performance. In addition, it is advisable that we should choose to take part in activities which have a positive effect on us. Finally, we can also spare some time for other entertainments to refresh our bodies and minds.

In my opinion, we can't deny that how we spend our college time will directly affect our future in the long run. Only by managing time well can we have the opportunity to embrace a successful life.

My View on Success

Success means different things to different people. Some may equate it with money, some with work, and still others with other achievements. For me, it means fulfilling one's dreams. Whatever your dreams are, you have a goal and then focus all your attention on them.

Success can bring you hope and happiness. Maybe you cry, sweat, complain or even curse, but the joy of harvest makes you forget all the pains and troubles you have gone through. So an old proverb says that the sweetest fruit is one that has undergone the bitterest ordeal.

In a word, my view regarding success is that we should persist in working hard, do our jobs with prudence, be confident in ourselves and have the courage to overcome any kind of difficulty. Only in this way can we live a successful life.

Fake Commodities

Fake and poor-quality commodities are a serious problem in society. Many daily items, ranging from soybean sauce and vinegar to bicycles, can be counterfeited. Such fake goods not only infringe on consumers' legitimate rights and interests but also cause continuous financial losses to many legitimate enterprises.

This phenomenon stems from two main reasons. On the one hand, the primary cause is the greed of some people who are eager to "make easy money", with total disregard for intellectual property protection laws. On the other hand, many consumers lack the ability to distinguish genuine products from fake ones and are easily cheated by dishonest merchants.

To solve this problem, the government should take strict measures. It should strengthen legal education to make producers and sellers abide by relevant laws and stop producing fake goods. Meanwhile, severe penalties must be imposed on illegal producers, and all factories making fake commodities should be closed down. Only in this way can the market be purified and consumers be better protected.

On the Overuse of the Mobile Phone

With the development of science and technology, people nowadays, especially young people, are growing increasingly dependent on their mobile phones. It is true that the mobile phone has brought great convenience to people's life.

However, the overuse of it may lead to several bad consequences. To begin with, there is evidence that long-term exposure to electromagnetic radiation may trigger many health problems, such as insomnia, headaches and even cancers. In addition, when people immerse themselves in the mobile phone, they tend to pay less attention to their surroundings, posing an immediate threat to their life, health and property. Last but not least, excessive use of mobile phones means much less chance of face-to-face interactions with people around them.

In conclusion, though mobile phones have contributed a lot to making our life more convenient, we should use them appropriately and rationally.

Electronic waste

Electronic waste has become a matter of serious public concern as a growing number of electronic products are discarded in landfills every year. This phenomenon brings about serious problems, which are mainly caused by several factors.

First of all, electronic waste components pose hazards to the environment as well as human beings. What's more, these components release harmful gases, polluting the air and leading to global environmental problems. Last but not least, they release toxins, which pollute groundwater and affect human health.

In my view, it's high time that the public realized the harm of electronic waste and measures were taken to cope with this issue. Only in this way can we protect the environment and our health, and build a more sustainable and eco-friendly world for future generations.

Internet

In recent years, people have been developing an inseparable relationship with the Internet. As is known to all, it is convenient for us to click the mouse when surfing online, either to entertain ourselves or to meet work needs.

On the one hand, no one denies that the Internet is currently one of the most useful media in our daily life. As a college student, I go online every day to exchange information through e-mails with my net friends. But on the other hand, a good many people admit that they are too addicted to the Internet to maintain a regular and wholesome lifestyle.

Thus, it is necessary for us to use the Internet in a reasonable way and refrain from overindulgence. After all, the Internet was invented to enrich our life and improve the efficiency of our work, rather than shackle us with a chain. Only by using it properly can we benefit from it in the true sense.

My View on Friendship

Friendship is a precious and indispensable aspect of life. It is a bond that forms between individuals who share common interests, experiences, and values.

One of the reasons why friendship is so important is that it provides a sense of belonging and support. When we have good friends, we have people who care about us and who we can rely on in times of need. What's more, when we have friends who are different from us, we are exposed to new ideas, perspectives, and experiences that we may not have encountered otherwise. This can help us to broaden our horizons, challenge our assumptions, and become more open-minded and empathetic.

In conclusion, friendship is a vital part of life that brings many benefits. It provides a sense of belonging and support, allows us to learn and grow, and brings joy and happiness into our lives.

Credit Cards

Personal credit cards are becoming more common in China. Banks and other financial institutions are encouraging their customers to change the way they buy things. Credit cards, otherwise known as “plastic money,” are being offered on very good terms to encourage the change. Consumers will be able to “buy now, pay later,” and many see this as an advantage.

But people need to be careful. There are dangers associated with credit cards. Some people find it very easy to exceed their budget. They are tempted to purchase goods that they do not really need and can quickly become overburdened with debt. Credit cards often charge a high rate of interest, which exacerbates the problems for these people.

However, used wisely, credit cards can improve the quality of people’s lives. They can give people access to funds to meet unplanned expenses. Properly handled, they can help people control their expenditure, and monthly statements provide a record of where their money has gone.

Dear fellow students,

With the approach of the Spring Festival, the city government has recently issued a policy banning fireworks to ensure a peaceful and harmonious festival. On behalf of the Students’ Union, I am earnestly calling for your active participation in this campaign.

Despite the excitement they can bring, fireworks are also a source of danger. The risk of serious fires, severe injuries and even loss of life has been increasing. In addition, setting off fireworks can cause a great deal of pollution and waste.

We must face the situation and take action immediately. Let's start with ourselves and refuse to set off fireworks, setting a good example for the people around us. We hope that our joint efforts will create a healthy environment and an enjoyable festival for everyone.

Yours sincerely,

Li Hua
