Section A (30 points)

Directions: There are two passages in this part. Each passage is followed by some questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choices marked A, B, C and D. You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 1—5 are based on the following passage.

More than 1,000 schools across the UK have signed up (报名) to a project with the aim of helping schools become carbon neutral (碳中和的) by 2030. Carbon neutral means cutting down carbon emissions (碳排放) to zero or balancing them out in other ways. Carbon emissions are gases such as carbon dioxide (CO₂) that come out into the atmosphere, where they make climate change worse. This has also caused the temperature rise.

Emissions are caused by all sorts of human activities, such as burning fossil fuels (coal, oil and gas) to make energy, cutting down forests and some types of farming. Becoming carbon neutral includes cutting the amount of carbon emissions a school produces and balancing those that are left by taking some carbon out of the atmosphere.

The project also shows how small changes can make a big difference. These might include thinking carefully about energy use, cutting waste, growing food closer to where it's eaten and walking or cycling to school if it is possible. Ways of balancing out the carbon emissions that a school still makes include planting trees and plants that take in CO₂ as they grow.

Ysgol Bro Dinefwr Secondary School in Wales has promised to run entirely on renewable (可再生的) energy (such as wind and solar power) within the next three years. At Down High School in Northern Ireland, the students are looking after their own bees. So when flowers and crops produce food, that helps. Other schools have projects to cut food waste by weighing it after each meal to know how much is not being eaten. Some put the waste into a system that can turn this waste into useful things. They will be put on the garden to help plants grow.

Climate change is seen as a major global challenge. We can see it all around us. So join together, find out ways your school can put efforts to, and talk to a teacher about signing up.

1. Which statement would the author most probably agree with?

- A. Human activities influence the environment.
- B. The fight against climate change will not succeed.
- C. More UK schools should be introduced to the world.
- D. We could deal with the climate change without changing our behavior.

2. How could the schools reduce carbon emissions?

- A. By moving to the countryside.
- B. By cutting waste and planting trees.
- C. By providing more spaces for students.
- D. By burning coal instead of gas to make energy.

3. Why does the author give examples of the schools in paragraph 4?

- A. To praise these schools.
- B. To show the difficulties in the project.
- C. To call for more schools to take action.
- D. To explain the efforts made by the government.

4. What is the best title for the text?

- A. How to Help Plants Grow
- B. Schools Sign Up to Help the Planet
- C. Carbon Emissions in the UK Schools
- D. Our Planet, a Wonderful Living Place

5. What can we learn about renewable energy from the text?

- A. It includes coal, oil and gas.
- B. Ysgol Bro Dinefwr plans to use it completely soon.
- C. It will produce more carbon emissions.
- D. It is not suitable for secondary schools to use.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

The Beijing 2022 Winter Olympics was a great success. China has kept the promise to hold a green Olympics. Many green actions made it possible, like providing environmentally friendly smart beds, using new energy (新能源) cars, supporting sporting places with 100% clean energy and reusing rain and snow water.

Take making ice as an example. China didn't use R507, a common material to make ice, because it isn't friendly enough to the environment. Through 18 months' hard work, China independently developed the CO₂ direct cooling technology.

A net of tubes runs under the ice. High-pressure liquid (液态) CO₂ goes through them to create heat (热) exchange. The CO₂ evaporates (蒸发) under the ice surface. The evaporation takes in heat and turns water on the surface into ice. And the CO₂ goes into another circle. This technology helps to make ice better and faster. And above all, it is much greener because there's no new CO₂ produced. Among all the 15 ice sporting places in the Winter Olympics, 7 used the CO₂ direct cooling technology to make ice. As a result, much less pollution was caused.

Beijing did so much more to save energy. Beijing built the new sporting places with green materials. As for the old ones, Beijing used new glass walls to take the place of traditional walls to let more natural light in. 70% of the waste heat was also reused to keep warm and dry. And a large number of new energy cars were used at the Beijing 2022 Winter Olympics.

The Beijing 2022 Winter Olympics is the first to truly achieve carbon neutrality (碳中和), and it has set new standards in green technologies. Some newspapers say China has set an example for the world in environmental protection and green development.

6. How long did it take China to develop the CO₂ direct cooling technology?

- A. 18 months.
- B. 100 weeks.
- C. 15 days.
- D. 7 years.

7. The writer writes Para. 3 to show _____.

- A. why the CO₂ goes into another circle
- B. how the new ice-making technology helped
- C. how sporting places used the new technology
- D. why the liquid CO₂ runs through the net of tubes

8. According to the passage, we can infer (推断) that _____.

- A. all the buildings will be built with glass walls in the near future
- B. the CO₂ direct cooling technology may be widely used in the world
- C. the high-pressure liquid CO₂ will totally take the place of R507 soon
- D. no new standards in green technologies may be set after the Olympics

9. Which of the following can be the best title for the passage?

- A. A New Green Ice-making Technology
- B. Green Technologies Used in Sports
- C. A Shared Future of Green Development

D. The Green Beijing Winter Olympics

10. What can we learn about the new energy cars used in Beijing 2022 Winter Olympics?

- A. They helped Beijing achieve carbon neutrality partly.
- B. They were the only green action of the Olympics.
- C. They produced more waste heat than traditional cars.
- D. They were used less than traditional cars during the Olympics.

Section B(20 points)

Directions: In this section there is a passage with ten blanks. You are required to select one word for each blank from a list of choices given in a word bank following the passage. Read the passage through carefully before making your choices. Each choice in the bank is identified by a letter. Please mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the centre. You may not use any of the words in the bank more than once.

Have you ever tried hiking? I had my first hiking experience on Jade Dragon Snow Mountain with my friend when I went to Yunnan.

This was the first time I had traveled so far 1 my parents. I was very excited and discussed the plan with my friend almost every week before the trip. Unluckily, not 2 went according to the plan. When we arrived at Lijiang, the weather was not good. It was a cloudy day and we could 3 see the mountain. My friend and I decided to book a guide to the Jade Dragon Snow Mountain.

The next morning, the guide met us on time at the hotel. We 4 lake on our way to the mountain. The lake was beautiful. There were lots of wild animals. It 5 me of a poem (诗): "When the winds blow, and grass bends low, sheep and cattle will emerge before your eyes."

At the foot of the mountain, we could only see mountains, soil and the sky. When we arrived at the top, I started to feel a bit 6. It was hard for me to take in air. This made it hard to enjoy the view. The guide gave me good advice. He said, "7 your step instead of thinking about how many steps you have to take." It was not easy, but the experience was 8. It was nice to see the valley (山谷) from up above when we finished the hike.

During the twenty 9 trip to Yunnan, we climbed the mountains, visited Stone Forest and tried many kinds of food. We also went to lots of 10 towns. Most of them have a history of hundreds of years. It is hard to say which part was the best. Things like this make it so fun to travel.

You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 1—5 are based on the following passage.

With the outbreak of COVID-19 people are encouraged and even forced to practice social distancing from each other in public. From the ancient Chinese fist-in-palm bow(拱手礼) to the new elbow touch used by western politicians, the ways of greeting have changed greatly.

Perhaps the most famous greeting in China is the Wuhan shake. The "shake", including both sides hitting lightly on the shoes with each other, started in March after the videos of the new greeting went hot. Since it first appeared, some famous politicians have publicly performed the Wuhan shake, inspiring a guess that it might become the world's new greeting.

"Wuhan shake is a fun way to show people's close relationship in such a difficult time. Chumo-Kang Shih, a cultural professor at the University of Florida, said. People want to cheer themselves up by not touching physically, so they invented this."

China is not alone. As social distancing remains due to COVID-19, many cultures around the world are taking their new greetings to adapt to the new situation.

Across New Zealand, local Maori groups warned their members to avoid greeting each other with traditional hongi (two people touch their noses and foreheads together). New Zealand's prime minister, Jacinda Ardern, strongly advised all people to stop handshakes, hugs and hongi. He said, "We must change customs and traditions which are harmful at this special time, since the most important thing in the world is the people."

In France, the traditional cheek kiss is very important to greeting with friends, workmates and even national leaders. Although the situation got improved, Manon Fily went to see some old high school friends after two months staying away in her home. "We had the strong wish to do the cheek kiss when greeting," said Fily. However, considering the tough situation, we had to stop ourselves."

1. What caused the way of greeting to change globally?

- A. COVID-19. B. People's choice.
C. The harmful traditions. D. Famous people's performance.

2. Why do people practise the Wuhan shake according to Chuan-Kang Shih?

- A. To catch the fashion. B. To follow the leaders.
C. To cheer up each other. D. To show their personality.

3. What does Jacinda Ardern suggest in Paragraph 5?

- A. People are more important than traditions.
B. People should give up practicing hongi forever.
C. Local people are more important than politicians."
D. Local people must change the traditions and customs.

4. What does the underlined word tough in Paragraph 6 probably mean?

- A. cool B. hard C. crazy D. Cold

5. What's in common about the changed greetings in the passage?

- A. They all follow the government's order. B. They all become popular since the start.
C. They all get support from the politicians. D. They all encourage social distancing from others.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage

In my opinion, China's "Double Reduction" Policy ("双减"政策) aimed at easing (减轻) education-related pressure on parents and children is effective. Now take my home as an example to show how it works.

"Dad! Get up! You promised to take us to the zoo today!" my two daughters shouted together one recent Saturday morning. The clock had just struck seven, but our house had already gotten noisier than the monkeys in the zoo!

For families with children, weekends have become very different. In the past, my wife and I could at least sleep in (睡懒觉). Then at 9 o'clock, we had to wake up the kids. After throwing them into a tutoring class (辅导班), we could enjoy several hours to ourselves. But now, these classes are gone altogether. Kids, of course, are happy about this. Every Tuesday or Wednesday evening, my girls would ask me, "Where are we going to spend this coming Saturday?"

Luckily, there are still some classes for them to attend. On Sundays, my girls go to learn ballet and chess. They really enjoy their time there. My elder daughter is old enough to read quietly on her own. On lucky days, we can get her to read together with her sister. Still, a quiet "competition" is on. My girls sometimes talk about how their classmates have spent an exciting weekend. It's their way of complaining about my laziness.

Weekends are more tiring now for parents, but I think they are good for kids. After all, childhood should be more than just studying school subjects. It should be more colorful.

6. What is the aim of the "Double Reduction" Policy?

- A. To ease education-related pressure on parents and children.
B. To make parents stay with their children at weekends.
C. To make parents have more time for themselves at weekends.
D. To make children and their parents have a good time at weekends.

7. What did the writer do with his children one recent Saturday morning?

- A. They travelled to the countryside. B. They went camping.
C. They went to the zoo. D. They went to a tutoring class.

8. When the tutoring classes are gone altogether, children are _____.

- A. tired B. sad C. happy D. surprised

9. Which of the following is NOT true?

- A. The writer's elder daughter is old enough to read quietly by herself.
B. The "Double Reduction" Policy is effective.
C. The writer's children learn ballet and chess on Sundays now.
D. Weekends are more relaxing for parents because of the "Double Reduction" Policy.

10. What might be the writer's attitude (态度) toward the Policy?

- A. Supportive. B. Disapproving. C. Doubtful. D. Unsure.

III. Reading Comprehension (50 points)

Section A (30 points)

Directions: There are two passages in this part. Each passage is followed by some questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choices marked A, B, C and D. You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 1—5 are based on the following passage.

"Pure love, only for the country"—this is a sentence from the diary of Chen Xiangrong, a 19-year-old Chinese soldier who was stationed at the border of Galwan Valley. Unfortunately, Chen died during a border clash (边境冲突) between Chinese and Indian troops in June 2020.

Last June, Indian soldiers illegally crossed to the Chinese side of the Galwan Valley and set up tents, which forced the Chinese troops to react, Xinhua said.

Regimental commander Qi Fabao, 41, led several of his soldiers to negotiate (协商) with the Indian side. However, they were then attacked by Indian soldiers with steel pipes and rocks. Chen Hongjun, 33, Chen Xiangrong, 19, Wang Zhuoran, 24 and Xiao Siyuan, 24, died during the clash. Qi was the only one left alive, but was seriously injured.

It was the first time the Chinese military has made public the number of deaths, the names of the fallen soldiers and details since the clash happened. According to Defense Ministry spokesman Wu Qian, responsibility for the Galwan Valley clash falls on India.

On Feb. 19, the Central Military Commission (CMC) honored the two officers and three soldiers for defending the border. Four of them received awards after death. The awards include honorary titles and first-class merit.

In China, an honorary title is the highest award given to a service member in military. A first-class merit is second-highest.

The country has also offered pensions (抚恤金) to the four martyrs' families. A team will stay in touch with the family members and help them if needed. The martyrs' children will also get extra points on the gaokao.

1. Pure love, only for the country comes from _____.
A. a book of Chen Xiangrong B. a diary of Chen Xiangrong
C. a book of Qi Fabao D. a diary of Qi Fabao
2. _____ was badly wounded during the border clash.
A. Chen Hongjian B. Wang Zhuora C. Qi Fabao D. Xiao Siyuan
3. The border clash happened because _____.
A. a Chinese soldier died B. Indian soldiers lost many tents
C. Chinese troops were training in the valley D. Indian soldiers illegally crossed the border
4. What did the Chinese soldiers plan to do at first?
A. Fight the Indian soldiers with rocks. B. Make the clash public.
C. Deal with the clash peacefully. D. Help injured Indian soldiers.
5. What do we know from the last three paragraphs?
A. China has shown great respect for the four martyrs.
B. The four martyrs had received honorary titles before death.

D. The martyrs' children can go to any of China's top universities.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage

Every year, there are some people spreading positive energy (正能量) and touching our hearts. On March 3, the Touching China annual people award aired on CCTV. Ten role models were on the list. Zhu

Yanfu was one of them.

In 2021, audiences were impressed by the soldiers in The Battle at Lake Changjin (《长津湖》). Zhu Yanfu was one of the real soldiers. In freezing cold, Zhu, 17 years old then, fought against the US army at Lake Changjin in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (朝鲜) in 1950. After the war, Zhu lost all his fellow soldiers and was seriously injured. After 93 days of surgery (手术), Zhu lost his hands, left eye and both legs below the knees.

Even so, Zhu never stopped devoting himself to his country. "There are two ways to spend life. One is to 'rot', while the other is to 'burn'. I prefer to burn," he said. In 1956, he returned to his mountain village of Zibo, Shandong and became an official (官员) of the village in 1957. After that, he worked hard to help villagers out of poverty (贫穷):

Knowing that the best way to end poverty was through education, in 1957, Zhu used all his savings (积蓄) to open a reading room. Later, he set up the first evening school in the village.

At the same time, he also encouraged villagers to dig three wells in the mountain and to create farmland. On this land, Zhu led the villagers to plant apples and Sichuan pepper. With these fruits and vegetables selling in different parts of the country, the villagers have made more money for the past 25 years.

6. How old was Zhu when he returned to his mountain village of Zibo?
A. 17 B. 23 C. 24 D. 25
7. What happened to him during the war?
A. Zhu lost his whole legs. B. Zhu was badly hurt in the war.
C. Zhu lost his hands and right eye. D. Zhu had surgery for nearly two months.
8. What does the underlined word "rot" in the third paragraph mean?
A. to be bored B. to get better
C. to become worse D. to be satisfied
9. Why did Zhu use all his savings to open a reading room?
A. Because he wanted to continue his study.
B. Because his villagers asked him to do so.
C. Because he knew education was the best way to end poverty.
D. Because his villagers wanted to learn how to make money through reading.
10. Where can you probably read the passage?
A. In a newspaper. B. In a story book.
C. In a science book. D. In a travel magazine.

In February, a young man in Italy posted a video on Tik Tok about his new neighbor and their unbelievable piano talent! They 1 by one wall, but they built their friendship by two pianos. One day in January, the young man came up with an idea 2 he heard the music from his neighbor. He wanted to invite his neighbor to play a song together. Then he wrote a note, "Would you like to play the song My Heart Will Go On 3 was sang by Celine Dion with me?"

The next day, hearing the music from the neighbor, the young man was both excited and 4. Their communication soon turned into piano duets (二重奏) 5 the wall, where each of them would create great music together.

Later, the young man learned that his neighbor's name was Emil and he was 78 years old. His wife passed away in December from COVID-19. Emil felt so sad and the only 6 for him was playing the piano. He played it for his wife at 2 pm every weekend.

7, Emil passed away in his sleep a few weeks later. When the young man learned the news, he felt so sad. 8 his feeling, the young man wrote a letter to Emil, "Dear Emil, I knew very little about you, but you changed my life. You gave me back my passion (激情), and we shared that with the world. You'll be in my 9. I'll keep playing, thinking of how powerful music can be. You said I was your light, but you've been 10, too. Bye, Emil."

Directions: There are two passages in this part. Each passage is followed by some questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choices marked A, B, C and D. You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 1—5 are based on the following passage.

Doing sports is good for our body and mind. Today, exercising through online videos is becoming popular. With the Internet, people can do it anytime, anywhere.

One of my friends, Lin Fei, followed short videos to do daily exercise. "With live programs, I feel like I am working out with my friends, which encourages me to hold on to the last minute," she said. Another friend of mine, Michael, told me that working out through videos made him feel comfortable. "I have a fear of working out at the gym, because I don't like being watched by people around me. But working out at home doesn't make me feel embarrassed," he said.

Hearing about their experiences, I decided to give it a try. When I told my plan to my elder sister, a P.E. teacher, she said that workout videos could be helpful but might still carry some problems.

"Without being with someone in person, you will be less willing to work out to your best. Working out at the gym allows you to have advice in real time and get pushed harder," my sister said to me. "Well, if you really want to have a try, first, choose proper programs or videos. That's very important. And then ask your friends for advice. These experiences can give you a better understanding of what you can expect. Anyway, don't depend too much on it. You should try some different ways too."

At her suggestions, I followed an online program for three months, which also offered advice to meet my personal needs. After the first period of mining, I felt it very practical and helpful when I put in the right amount of work with a strong will. Compared with going to the gym, using online videos is a much cheaper and time-saving choice. But it can be difficult sometimes when I'm too lazy or too busy to stick with it.

1. What do the writer's friends think of working out through online videos?

- A. Lin Fei likes it but Michael doesn't.
- B. Both Lin Fei and Michael like it.
- C. Neither Lin Fei nor Michael likes it.

2. What is the writer's sister's idea about following work out videos?

- A. It may fail to push you to your best.
- B. It can offer you advice when you exercise.
- C. It provides you with different ways of exercise.

3. What advice on working out through online videos will the writer probably give?

- A. The more you exercise, the more advice you will get.
- B. Following online videos is simply enough.
- C. Don't give up especially when you feel lazy.

4. What does the underlined word "time-saving" probably mean?

- A. 实时存储的
- B. 拯救时间的
- C. 节省时间的

5. What is the main idea of this passage?

- A. Working out through online videos has advantages and problems.
- B. Working out through online videos is convenient but not helpful.
- C. Working out through online videos is necessary and popular.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage

Scientists have been hoping to explore the moon with robots. But the land on the moon is tough. There are steep (陡峭的) hills, big rocks and holes. It is hard for common robots to move around. A small robot called COBRA is here to help.

Students from Northeastern University in the US made COBRA. It won the top prize in NASA's Breakthrough, Innovative, and Game changing (BIG) Idea Challenge. The robot is made up of 13 mini-bots. It looks like a snake. It can wiggle (扭动) in the sand and down a dirt road. It can connect its head to its tail to roll down long and steep hills. Its spiral structure (螺旋结构) helps it move out of tough places more easily.

Why do we need robots on the moon? One of NASA's biggest goals in the coming years is to put humans back on the moon. They did it more than 50 years ago. But this time, they hope to stay on the moon and set up a base (基地). "If you're going back to the moon to stay, robots are going to be an important part of it," said NASA engineer Vandi Verma. She is also one of the judges (裁判) of the BIG Idea Challenge.

NASA wants to build the base in an area on the moon's south pole (南极). That area may have frozen water, which is important for humans. But the area is full of steep hills and holes. NASA turns to young people for their out-of-the-box ideas. At the BIG Idea Challenge, teams from different universities came up with all kinds of solutions (解决方案).

6. What can COBRA help scientists do?

- A. Catch small snakes.
- B. Do studies on the moon.
- C. Send people to the moon.

7. Why can COBRA move more easily in tough places than other robots?

- A. Because it has a special structure.
- B. Because it has a long tail.
- C. Because it is smaller than other robots.

8. "Out-of-the-box ideas" in the last paragraph might refer to (指) ideas that _____.

- A. are about boxes
- B. are always correct
- C. are different and unusual

9. What does the underlined word "frozen" in the last paragraph mean in Chinese?

- A. 液态的
- B. 冻结的
- C. 清澈的

10. What can we infer (推测) from the passage?

- A. Many NASA scientists were winners of the BIG Idea Challenge.
- B. NASA plans to build a base on the moon in 50 years.
- C. Robots will play an even bigger part in scientific exploration.

III. Reading Comprehension (50 points)

Section A (30 points)

Directions: There are two passages in this part. Each passage is followed by some questions or unfinished statements. For each of them, there are four choices marked A, B, C and D. You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 1—5 are based on the following passage.

Honestly, I had never enjoyed reading science fictions until a friend of mine pressed a copy of The Three-Body Problem into my hands. "You've just got to read this novel!"

"But I have no interest in superheroes fighting aliens to save the world. I prefer real people dealing with real-life situations."

"Exactly. That's why I want you to read it"

But, he was right. I fell in love with the book from the very beginning and finished it in only a couple of days. One reason why it was such a page-turner was Liu Cixin's wonderful story-telling style. I especially liked his way of dealing with time. Most books are in the order of time, but The Three-Body Problem jumps back and forth. It starts back in history, nearly 60 years ago. Then, it jumps forward 40 years, when the characters have become elderly men and women, before jumping back again.

And the lives of Ye Wenjie and Wang Miao certainly kept me turning the pages. However, I also fell in love with this book because it was thought-provoking (发人深省的). Yes, there are aliens in it, but the theme of this story is life on Earth and how we humans are destroying the planet. Real-world science, history and philosophy(哲学) are combined into this very attractive story. As a great sci-fi work, it sparks(激发) interest in science, and it makes readers think.

The Three-Body Problem has enjoyed great popularity worldwide. It's no surprise then, that it has been adapted(改编) into a TV series. At first, I didn't like this idea. Books often lose a lot of their value when they are made into TV series. Books are slow. You need patience to understand what is going on. TV movies much faster. It is packed with action and cool characters. Young people are often more interested in what they see on their screens than in the stories and their messages. However, some of you may be too young to fully understand books like The Three-Body Problem. A good TV series can help you to become a better reader and can greatly encourage you to read more widely. But once you do fall in love with reading, you will realize that it is a good book, not a TV series that will be your friend for life.

1. What can we learn from the first paragraph?

- A. The writer wasn't interested in sci-fi novels. B. The writer's friend wrote the sci-fi novel.
C. The writer's friend used to be a novelist. D. The writer has no interest in reading at all.

2. Why did the writer finish the book in only a couple of days?

- A. Because the book was a little bit boring. B. Because the book was really attractive.
C. Because the story in the book is short. D. Because the story was about aliens.

3. Which of the following statements is true?

- A. The main characters in the story are all aliens.
B. The superheroes drove aliens away in the end.
C. The theme of the story is how aliens destroy Earth.
D. The story begins with what happened 60 years ago.

4. We can infer from the passage that, in the writer's opinion, _____.

- A. a good book can make TV series more valuable
B. there's no need to adapt good books into TV series
C. young people are more interested in reading books
D. young people can understand sci-fi novels better

5. What does the writer think of the TV series adaptation of The Three-Body Problem?

- A. It is more valuable than the original book.
B. It can help young people develop interest in reading.
C. It completely loses the value of the original book.
D. It is only suitable for people who don't like reading.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage

Have you ever seen a solar panel (太阳能电池板) in your neighborhood? Solar panels take energy from the sun and turn it into electricity. Over the past ten years, the price of solar panels has gone down greatly. In many parts of the world, solar energy is now the cheapest form of electricity. More and more people have started using solar energy.

However, common solar panels also have their problems. They stop working at night and on rainy days. Is it possible to make them produce electricity all the time?

Scientists at Suzhou University, China, have invented a new solar panel now. It can produce electricity not only from solar energy but also from falling rain. When a raindrop falls on the solar panel and then rolls (滚动) down, it creates friction (摩擦力) on the surface of the panel, which can then be turned into electricity.

Sun Baoquan is one of the inventors. "Our new invention can produce electricity in any weather during the day, even at night," he says.

The solar panel, however, does not make much electricity from falling rain. So Sun Baoquan is still working hard to improve it. The scientist also wants to make solar panels more flexible, which are as soft as clothing.

The field of solar energy is developing fast. Scientists around the world have been improving solar panels. Some have been working on ways to join solar panels and wind power together. Some have been trying to use other ways.

6. Which energy is now the cheapest form of electricity in many parts of the world?

- A. Solar energy. B. Water energy. C. Wind energy. D. Natural gas.

7. What is one of the problems of common solar panels?

- A. They can't work all the time. B. The price of them is rising.
C. They can hardly be used in people's homes. D. It creates friction when producing electricity.

8. Why is the new solar panel more scientific and useful?

- A. It has a larger size than a common one.
B. It produces more electricity from falling rain than solar energy.
C. It can produce electricity day and night and even in rainy condition.
D. It can save more money.

9. What does the underlined word "flexible" mean in Paragraph 5?

- A. 坚硬的 B. 光滑的 C. 粗糙的 D. 柔软的

10. We can infer (推断) from the text that _____.

- A. there is no room for developing solar energy
- B. there is no end to the research in the field of solar energy
- C. solar energy has met people's needs for electricity
- D. solar energy has completely taken the place of other kinds of energy

II. Reading Comprehension (50 points)

Section A (30 points)

Directions: There are 2 passages in this part. Each passage is followed by some questions or unfinished statements, for each of them there are 4 choices marked A, B, C and D. You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the centre.

Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

This past fall semester, at Duke University, there were two students who were taking organic chemistry. They did pretty well in all of the tests and the midterms and labs, etc., so that going into the final they had a solid "A". These two friends were so confident going into the final that the weekend before finals' week, even though the chemistry final was on Monday, they decided to go up to the University of Virginia and have a party with some friends up there. So, they did this and had a great time. However, with the aftereffects of alcohol and everything, they overslept all day Sunday and didn't make it back to Duke until early Monday morning.

Rather than take the final then, what they did was to find Professor Aldric after the final and explain to him why they missed the final. They told him that they went up to UVA for the weekend, and had planned to come back in time to study, but they had a flat tire (爆胎) on the way back and didn't have a spare and couldn't get help for a long time and so were late getting back to campus.

Aldric thought this over and then agreed that they could make up the final on the following day. The two guys were overjoyed and relieved. So, they studied that night and went in the next day at the time that Aldric had told them. He placed them in separate rooms and handed each of them a test booklet and told them to begin.

They looked at the first problem, which was something simple about free radical formation and was worth 5 points. "Cool," they thought, "this is going to be easy." They did that problem and then turned the page. They were unprepared, however, for what they saw on the next page.

It said: (95 points) Which tire was flat?

1. The two students decided to visit their friends at the weekend because_____.

- A. they didn't want to take the exam.
- B. they were invited by their friends.
- C. they were not worried about the exam at all.
- D. they forgot the arrangement of the final exam.

2. They didn't return as planned because_____.

- A. they got lost on their way back
- B. they slept beyond the time to come back
- C. their car broke down on their way back
- D. they couldn't get help when they were in difficulty

3. How did the Professor arrange the make-up exam?

- A. He made the exam booklet very long.
- B. He gave them different exam papers.
- C. He asked a very surprising question.
- D. He gave them very limited time to finish the paper.

4. When they took the first glance at the exam booklet, they thought_____.

- A. it was easy
- B. it was too much
- C. it was too difficult
- D. it was reasonable

5. It can be inferred from the passage that_____.

- A. the students didn't like Professor Aldric
- B. the two students had difficulties in their studies
- C. the two students would surely pass the make-up exam
- D. Professor Aldric was very clever and humorous

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

A large, detached (独立的) house not only ensures privacy. It is also a status symbol. The "magnificent home" is set in a big garden. Of course, this kind of house is an unrealistic dream for most people. But even a small detached house, surrounded by a garden, gives the required suggestion of rural life which is dear to the hearts of many British people. Most people would be happy to live in a cottage (村舍), and if this is a thatched (茅草屋顶的) cottage, suggestive of a pre-industrial age, so much the better.

Most people try to avoid living in a block of flats (what the Americans call "apartment blocks"). Flats, they feel, provide the least amount of privacy. With a few exceptions, mostly in certain locations in central London, flats are the cheapest kind of home. The people who live in them are those who cannot afford to live anywhere else.

The dislike of living in flats is very strong. In the 1950s millions of poorer people lived in old, cold, uncomfortable nineteenth century houses, often with only an outside toilet and no bathroom. During the next twenty years many of them were given new "high-rise" blocks of flats to live in which, with central heating and bathrooms, were much more comfortable and were surrounded by grassy open spaces.

But people hated their new homes. They said they felt cut off from the world with all those floors up. They missed the neighborliness. They couldn't keep a watchful eye on their children playing down there in those lovely green spaces. The new high-rise blocks quickly got broken. The lifts didn't work. The corridors were dark. Windows were damaged and were not repaired. There was graffiti all over the walls.

6. British people prefer_____.

- A. flats to detached houses
- B. cottages to flats
- C. modern houses to old houses
- D. city life to country life

7. A garden is considered to be desirable because_____.

- A. it's British
- B. it appears rural
- C. gardening is popular

- D. children like gardens
8. British people don't like to live in blocks of flats because_____.
- A. they want more privacy
- B. flats are too small
- C. flats are in expensive areas
- D. they dislike the neighbors there
9. Compared with the 1950s' houses, the new high-rise blocks_____.
- A. were in better locations
- B. were warmly welcomed
- C. were much better equipped
- D. were much more expensive
10. Which of the following might be the best title of this passage?
- A. British Culture
- B. Houses, Not Flats
- C. British Dream
- D. Kinds of Houses

Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

Creative thinking isn't just for art classes. Any time you try something different to solve a problem, you're being creative. In sports, that might mean trying new moves to score a goal for your team. In engineering, that might mean using different materials to protect an egg. At home, it could mean figuring out a shortcut (捷径) to get to your friend's house or making up a game to enjoy yourself. You are creative every day!

Are some people naturally more creative than others?

Maybe, but anyone can get more creative with practice. Here are some skills that work for professional people who are creative in very different ways.

Explore and Imagine

Shigeru Miyamoto is the brains behind Super Mario Bros, one of the world's most popular video games. He spent hours exercising his creativity by exploring nature and going on adventures in his mind. He finds joy in making up new worlds and adventures to design new games.

Look for Mix-up

Dr. Oxman and her team mix things that don't usually go together. For example, they mixed ideas from common robots and insects when they invented small robots. Dr. Oxman said she often doubted (怀

疑) her ideas. If you come up with ideas that you're not sure about, don't worry.

Keep Creating

Miranda wrote the songs for Disney's movie Moana. In an interview, he was asked if he kept writing new songs, his answer: "Always!"

Fear No Failure

Researchers have found that the most creative people don't wait for the perfect idea. They constantly (不断地) come up with new ideas, then keep the best of them. Also, like most inventors and scientists, creative people have more failure than success.

- What is the main theme of this passage?
A. Open-mindedness
B. Thought of creativeness
C. Critical thinking
D. Authority
- How many approaches to develop the creative thinking?
A. 4
B. 5
C. 6
D. 7
- What is Shigeru Miyamoto's job?
A. Game designer
B. Brain researcher
C. Nature explorer
D. Wild adventurer
- Why is Dr. Oxman's small robots special?
A. Dr. Oxman often doubted her ideas.
B. They come up with ideas that we're not sure about.
C. They are small robots mixed common robots with insects.
D. Dr. Oxman and her team mix things that don't usually go together.
- The best title for this passage would be _____.
A. Exploring and Imagining
B. Looking for Mix-up
C. Fearing No Failure
D. Getting More Creative with Practice

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

Thoughts of suicide haunted Anita Rutnam long before she arrived at Syracuse University. She had a history of mental illness and had even attempted to kill herself. During her junior year of college, she tried again. On a February morning in 1998, just days after a campus counselor recommended, she be hospitalized for her suicidal tendencies, Rutnam threw herself off the eighth floor of a Syracuse dormitory.

Miraculously, she survived. But three years later, Rutnam still feels the effects of that day. She has not been able to finish college and is suing her former school for malpractice. Her suit asserts that, given the campus counselor's advice, school officials should have done more to prevent her suicide attempt.

This incident and others have thrown a spotlight on an issue that is causing growing concern in dorm rooms and students center. Are colleges providing adequate care for students who may be struggling with a range of mental illnesses? In the Syracuse cases, a spokesman for the school contends, "The University tried repeatedly to help Anita, and we felt that they acted appropriately." But lawyers are busy there and elsewhere.

After accidents, suicide is the second biggest killer of kids in college. And while the number of students who kill themselves on campus is no higher than that of 18-to-24-year-olds in the general population, a series of sensational incidents has raised the question of whether troubled students are getting proper attention.

So what are the schools' responsibilities to at-risk students, particularly those who may be genetically predisposed (易患...病的) to mental illness? College can be a breeding ground for psychiatric problems. Poor eating habits and irregular sleeping patterns- especially combined with the academic stress of college life -may all play roles in triggering mental problems. Additionally, many of the major psychiatric illnesses including depression often do not manifest themselves until the late teens or early 20s.

- Anita Rutnam couldn't finish college most probably because _____.
A. she couldn't get enough concern from Syracuse University
B. she wasn't physically healthy enough to continue schooling
C. she still kept thinking about killing herself whenever at school
D. she has been troubled by the memory of the incident very often
- What does the author want us to know through Anita Rutnam's story?
A. The universities are not responsible for their students.
B. Suicides are popular on college campus and should be handled properly.
C. Why Anita committed suicide is still a mystery.
D. Universities should get prepared in case their students sue them.
- What does Anita accuse her former school of?
A. Ignorance of her abnormal behaviors.
B. Lack of safeguard against her suicidal intention.
C. Failure to give her proper academic instructions.
D. Indifference to her physical disease.

9. How does Syracuse University defend itself against Anita's suit?

- A. It has given her due attention as well as help.
- B. Adult students should be able to control their own behavior.
- C. It is more than the school's responsibility to supervise the students.
- D. Colleges can be a breeding ground for psychiatric problems.

10. All the following problems are implied as possible causes of campus suicide incidents EXCEPT _____.

- A. poor academic results
- B. failing to get proper sleep
- C. lack of family concern
- D. family history of mental illness

A good deal of fascinating research has been done about the reading patterns of young people and it is surprising to discover at what an early age children start expressing preferences for particular kind of books. A recent report, which 1 in detail the reading habits of primary-school children, showed that even seven-year-old boys and girls have 2 views about what they want to read. Girls, in general, read more, and 3 more girls than boys preferred reading stories. Boys were showing a 4 for the more instant appeal of picture stories, or else books about their hobbies.

These tastes continue 5 until the children are teenagers. Apparently, girls read more in general, but more fictions in particular. You could say that there are more 6 for girls to read fictions: magazines 7 the fiction habit in girls in their early teens, and by their late teens they have probably moved on to the adult women's magazines. Teenage boys 8 to buy magazines about their hobbies: motorcycles, heavy transport and so on.

Adult reading tastes are also the 9 of research. Again the number of women who read for pleasure is 10 than the number of men. It seems that the majority of women still want love stories. There has also been some analysis of what men actually read. Apparently, only 38 percent of men read anything, but 50 percent of what they read is fiction in the form of action-packed stories of space or gunmen.

Grass is, of course a plant which grows in the field; a plant which some kinds of animals like to eat. When there has been plenty of 1, the grass is green. When the weather has been dry, the grass is brown. Animals like to eat grass when it is green and 2. And if the grass in one place is greener than the rest, animals 3 to eat that grass. An animal in a field may look over the fence (篱笆) into the next field, where perhaps there are no animals and grass in the field 4 greener. But if the animal could get into the field, it would find that the grass is really the same. It just seems better from a distance (远处). So that's the 5 of the expression "The grass is greener on the other side of the 6".

We sometimes only say "The grass is 7 greener on the other side." We use the expression to describe the situation 8 someone looks at distant things and feels they are better than the things around him. But 9 he could go to the distant place, he would find that life there is just as difficult. So don't always think that other people have a better situation. Just be 10 with what you have had. Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

Everyone seems to be talking about big data, but what is big data really? How is it changing the way that people at companies, non-profit organizations, governments and other organizations learn about the world around them?

Quite simply, big data reflects the changing world we live in. More and more changes are captured and recorded as data. By analyzing the data, researchers can learn trends in the data they measure, and people who generate the data. The aim of this kind of big data analysis is to provide more customized service for any industry that collects the data.

Big data is quantities of information that are put together so they can be used by a computer program. Big data can contain different kinds of information from many sources, such as information that comes from schools and social media sites. One set of data includes people's names and addresses. Another set can include what they like and how much time they spend on the computer.

Big data can be used in many ways. The government uses it to understand how many people travel on buses or trains. This information is then used to improve bus or train systems. Some schools use big data to understand which children may need extra help in class. The teacher can then give certain students more help or support. Companies also use big data to understand the sales of their products. For example, a food company uses weather data to see when people eat the most ice cream.

Big data can be used for good reasons. Some hospitals use big data to predict if a baby who is born early will get sick. Then the hospital can take special steps to take care of that baby. Big data can also be used for bad reasons. It may be used to predict which kinds of people are likely to break the law or hurt others.

1. This passage is talking about _____.
 A. some facts about big data
 B. what kinds of schools and hospitals people like
 C. where important data is collected and stored
 D. how big data is used by families
2. One food company uses weather information to _____.
 A. help children in need
 B. know when people will visit the hospital
 C. find out who rides the bus or train
 D. understand when people will need ice cream
3. What can we learn from the last paragraph?
 A. Big data can only be used for good reasons.
 B. We can't use big data to prevent crime.
 C. Big data can be used for both good and bad reasons.
 D. We can use big data to prevent adults from getting sick.
4. The overall tone of this passage is _____.
 A. sad and personal
 B. scientific and informative
 C. educational but silly
 D. personal and scientific
5. Which of the following is TRUE?
 A. Big data can tell us everything about one person.
 B. The government never uses big data.
 C. Big data can't contain any information.
 D. Big data can be used in schools.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

Computers have become so necessary for modern living that it is difficult to believe they are a relatively recent invention. Undoubtedly, they have proved valuable, but they also have disadvantages. For example, they have added to our already large number of crimes.

Hacking was the first computer crime that most of us became aware of. By using their computing expertise, hackers can gain unauthorized access to someone else's computer and make use of the data they find there. They may, for example, find lists of their competitor's clients and use these lists to build up their own businesses or they may use hacking technology to find out a rival company's plans. Other hacking activities may be more obviously criminal, because hackers may log on to financial data in someone else's computer and alter it illegally or use it for fraudulent (欺诈的) purposes.

The possibility of serious financial fraud has been greatly increased by the modern practice of purchasing goods through the Internet. Apparently, the use of credit cards to pay for purchases has led to many people being swindled out of a great deal of money. Banks are working hard to improve online security and to provide safeguards for customers, but fraudsters are working just as hard to improve their crooked techniques.

Many computer users worry about their systems being affected by computer viruses. People who introduce these bugs into other people's computer programs may not intentionally commit a crime but may do so as an act of mischief. The motive does not really matter to people whose data has been deleted or altered or whose files have been corrupted.

Computers are part of a highly technical method of working, in which there are constantly new developments. Unfortunately, there is also a constant stream of new developments in the fraud industry associated with them all. All computer users must be on their guard.

6. From the passage we can conclude that _____.
 A. computers are not a relatively new invention
 B. computers have proved to be a curse rather than a blessing
 C. computers have proved to be of little significance
 D. computers have walked into our lives recently
7. According to the passage, which of the following can make shopping online safe?
 A. Improving the banking security system.
 B. Always using credit cards.
 C. Withdrawing money from a bank only when you need it.

- D. Asking friends to shop online for you.
8. According to the passage, _____.
 A. computer users must be on guard against computer crimes
 B. hackers have authorized access to someone else's computer
 C. people don't have to care much about computer viruses
 D. computer crimes can be eradicated easily
9. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage as an example of hacking?
 A. Accessing someone else's financial data.
 B. Finding out a competitor's plans.
 C. Sending computer viruses to the public.
 D. Finding the lists of a competitor's clients.
10. Which of the following can be the best title for this passage?
 A. Advantages of Computers
 B. Disadvantages of Computers
 C. Computer Hacking
 D. Computers Have Become a Must in People's Daily Life

A group of adults, highly succeded in their jobs, went to visit their old professor. Soon they began to 1 the stress in work and life.

The professor went to the kitchen and returned 2 a pot of coffee and all kinds of cups — some 3 crystal (水晶的), some glass, plastic, some nice looking, some plain looking, some cheap. Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

Wyatt Baldwin has been playing rock, paper, scissors (剪刀) since he was a kid. The game helped him settle disagreements with his three older sisters. "I never got the chance to pick what we watched on TV until I learned the sport of rock, paper, scissors," he says.

Baldwin is president of the World Rock Paper Scissors Association. He has played in and hosted competitions all around the globe. He once had a 43-game winning streak. What is the secret to his success? "Look for patterns in either your opponent's moves or behavior," he says. As all serious rock, paper, scissors players know, there's more to the game than luck.

People have been playing rock, paper, scissors for about 2,000 years. It is played everywhere. Some cultures use different hand symbols, but the idea is the same. You and an opponent each "throw" one of three hand symbols. You win, lose, or tie (不分胜负). Many people think the game is all luck. It seems that your chances of winning and losing are about the same, but the outcome of the game is not random. That's because human behavior isn't random. There are patterns in how people make decisions.

A study at Zhejiang University in China, looked at how people played rock, paper, scissors. It followed 360 students in a competition. Researchers found two key patterns. Winners tended to repeat their winning hand symbols. Losers tended to go from rock to paper to scissors.

Knowing the psychology of the game is not a sure ticket to winning, but it can help. Ken Watson is one of the world's best rock, paper, scissors players. He says winning takes skill. "You have to size up your opponent. Luck and chance play a part, but you have to be prepared and have a strategy," he says. "Part of my strategy is being confident."

According to Baldwin, "practice, practice, practice" is the key to success. "You can try practicing against yourself in front of a mirror," he says. "But for me, that always ended up in a tie."

1. The support of rock, paper, scissors enabled little Wyatt Baldwin to _____.

- A. cut paper with scissors
- B. reach an agreement with his sisters
- C. learn the sports on TV
- D. produce TV shows with his sisters

2. What is the key to Baldwin's success in the game?

- A. Praying for good luck.
- B. Imitating his rival's moves.
- C. Figuring out his rival's patterns.
- D. Making friends with his opponent.

3. What can we learn about the game from Para. 3?

- A. The idea of the game varies from culture to culture.
- B. The chances of winning or losing the game are always equal.
- C. Different cultures use similar hand symbols to play the game.
- D. The decision-making patterns affect the outcome of the game.

4. The study at Zhejiang University found that _____.

- A. losers were likely to throw the hand symbol of paper
- B. losers were likely to throw the hand symbol of scissors
- C. winners were likely to ignore their opponents completely

D. winners were likely to repeat their winning hand symbols

5. What is Ken Watson's view on the game?

- A. Being relaxed is a sure ticket to winning.
- B. Being confident can increase the chance to win.
- C. Your chance of winning wholly depends on luck.
- D. Your chance of winning relates to the size of your opponent.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

Imagine walking through someone's apartment. The rooms are almost empty, and the only piece of furniture is a simple table and folded sofa. There are no decorative objects lying around — just the essentials. You open the closet to find you can count the number of clothing items inside on one hand. The space seems more like a prison cell than a home and you may think the resident cannot afford to buy more things to fill the apartment with.

It turns out that the apartment's owner is a minimalist who chooses to limit his number of belongings. Minimalism goes against consumer society by dramatically reducing possessions. Minimalists follow this philosophy to varying degrees, but they generally claim that cutting back on excess stuff leads to a more fulfilling life. With fewer possessions, they do not have to spend so much time cleaning, thinking about what they are minimizing, or trying to keep up with the latest trends. Minimalists say this frees up their time for things meaningful such as exercising, traveling, and being with loved ones.

Extreme minimalism is not for everyone, but a mild form of it has gained in popularity recently, thanks to Marie Kondo's best-selling book, The Life-changing Magic of Tidying up. Kondo has become distinguished for her tidying skills, which she developed naturally. One of her main belongings is that one should only own things that one truly loves.

It can be unpleasant to part with belongings, but Kondo's methods have helped minimalists remove useless things. Her technique for making space is to go through things by category, starting with clothing, then books, papers, tiny objects, and finally, memorable items. She instructs her followers to touch each object they own and keep only those that spark joy, promising that this will lead to domestic happiness.

Kondo stresses that it is not about throwing things away, but about finding the things you want to remain with you and striking a balance between personal joy and possessions. Even if you are not ready to become a minimalist, you may want to consider reducing the number of things you own for it seems that letting go of things can truly make room for happiness.

6. Paragraph 1 describes a person who probably _____.

- A. loves decorative objects
B. cannot afford the essentials
C. chooses to live a simple life
D. has a passion for counting his clothes
7. What does a minimalist go against?
A. Reducing possessions.
B. Living a more fulfilling life.
C. Limiting the number of belongings.
D. Buying more things than necessary.
8. If people adopt the minimalist lifestyle, they will _____.
A. have a passion for cleaning
B. keep up with the latest trends
C. think about what they are missing
D. have more time for meaningful things
9. The mild form of minimalism becomes popular because of Kondo's _____.
A. top-selling book
B. writing style
C. personal habits
D. cleaning skills
10. According to the last paragraph, what is the real meaning of minimalism?
A. Finding the right balance between belongings and joy.
B. Placing your possessions before your personal happiness.
C. Throwing away as many personal belongings as possible.
D. Buying a lot more things to follow the latest fashion trends.

Some people think they have an answer 1 the problem of pollution from cars in large cities. Their 2 is the bicycle, or bike.

In a great many cities, hundreds of people go to work by bike every day. In New York city, those who go to work by bike 3 organized a group called "Bike for a Better City". They said that if more people went to work by bike, there would be 4 cars in the city and 5 less dirty air from cars.

For several years this group has been 6 to get the city government to help them. For example, they want the city to paint special lanes (车道) for bicycles only on some of the main streets, because when bicycle riders must use the 7 lanes as cars, there may be 8. "Bike for a better City" feels that if there were special lanes, more people would use bikes.

But no bicycle lanes have been 9 yet. Not everyone thinks it is a good idea. Some store owners on the main streets don't like the idea—they say that if there is less traffic, they will have fewer customers. And most people live 10 far from the center of the city to travel by bike.

You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the centre.

Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

The hiring process may be different from one company to another. Nevertheless, the goal is the same—get the candidate who is the best fit for the position. Even so, how to choose that person? Here are some best practices used by industry leaders to attract the best talent for the job. In particular, these are the new trends in the hiring process to be prepared for when you have a job interview.

Typically, an interview is held in a conference room or office. However, this makes it easy for the employer and the candidate to act predictably. The problem with this approach is that at the end of a typical interview, the employers often don't have a much better feel for the candidate than they do after reading the candidate's resume. Alternatively, some employers walk around the office for part of the interview. This allows the employer to get a sense of how the candidate interacts with other people, and whether the candidate is truly curious and interested in how the company runs.

Another change is that some employers create teams to hire new employees in comparison to having just one administrator conduct the interview. Employers then get opinions from the team members. More importantly, this helps employers hire someone with whom current employees could get along.

Also, employers want to make sure that candidates provide new viewpoints for the company. Before they hire someone, they think about the diversity of viewpoints that the candidate can bring to the company. Be prepared to share how you can add value to the company through your own unique perspective and how you will help the company solve problems creatively.

Furthermore, many companies try to get a sense of the kind of work the candidates will do for the company before hiring them as full-time employees. For example, they may offer you a temporary contract first as a consultant. Likewise, they may assign you a small task as part of the interview process.

1. What is the goal of a job interview for a company?

- A. To change the hiring process.
- B. To discuss some best practices.
- C. To find the right person for a job.
- D. To attract more industry leaders.

2. What is the problem with a typical interview?

- A. A typical interview is held in the company.
- B. Employers may fail to know candidates well.
- C. Employers may ask candidates to read resumes.
- D. A typical interview is held in a conference room.

3. Why do some employers create teams to hire new employees?

- A. Because they have no time to participate in job interviews.
- B. Because they have to compare candidates with current employees.
- C. Because they want the current employees to form a few research teams.
- D. Because they want to ensure candidates can get on with other employees.

What is the meaning of the underlined word "diversity" in Paragraph 4?

- A. variety
- B. value
- C. division
- D. necessity

In this passage, the author mainly discusses _____

- A. new viewpoints on a company
- B. new trends in the hiring process
- C. the importance of a job interview
- D. methods to get along with employees

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

Climates are different from place to place. Take London and New York for example.

In London, the weather would never be extreme, never too hot and never too cold. There is no clear difference between seasons. A bad day in July could be as cold as a mild day in January. You should bring an umbrella whenever you go to London. Indeed, the small amount of sunshine and a great amount of dampness make you feel cold at almost any time of the year.

While in New York City, the temperature will change within a few hours. In winter, the snow will melt soon and the streets will be covered instead with mud. And within a few hours, the temperature will suddenly drop and mud will all change into ice. It is almost impossible to drive or walk. Cars slide and people slip and fall all over the streets. It is difficult to dress properly for such weather. If you dress lightly in the warm morning, the temperature drops and by night you will shiver with cold. But if you dress heavy in the morning because it seems cold, the weather may turn hot suddenly. New Yorkers even learn to joke about the weather. "If you don't like our weather, wait a minute. It will change." However, most New Yorkers love their city and accept such inconveniences.

6. Which of the following statement is true about the weather in London?

- A. It is extreme.
- B. It is always rainy.
- C. The temperatures in July and January are the same.
- D. You will never use an umbrella in London.

7. What is the most remarkable characteristic of the weather in New York City?

- A. The temperature changes quickly.
- B. The sun is always shining.
- C. It snows all the year round.
- D. It is always wet.

8. Why is it difficult to dress properly in New York City?

- A. The clothes are expensive there.
- B. The weather changes greatly within a day.
- C. It is hot at night and cold in the day.
- D. It is cold in the day and hot at night.

9. Which of the following statement is true according to the passage?

- A. Most people in London don't like the weather there.
- B. Most people in New York City don't like the weather there.
- C. Most New Yorkers love their city in spite of the inconveniences.

D. Most people want to live in New York City.

20. What does the passage want to indicate?

If you were to begin a new job tomorrow, you would bring with you some basic strengths and weaknesses. Success or 1 in your work would depend, to 2 great extent, 3 your ability to use your strengths and weaknesses to the best advantage. The utmost importance is your attitude. A person 4 begins a job convinced that he isn't going to like it or is sure that he is going to fail is exhibiting a weakness which can only hinder his success. On the other hand, a person who is secure 5 his belief that he is probably as capable of doing the work as anyone else and who is willing to make a cheerful attempt at it possesses a certain strength of purpose. The chances are that he will do well.

This book has been designed to help you capitalize on the strength and overcome the 6 that you bring to the job of learning. But in groups to measure your development, you must first take stock of where you stand now. 7 we get further along in the book, we'll be 8 in some detail with specific processes for developing and strengthening learning skills. However, to begin with, you should pause 9 examine your present strengths and weaknesses in three areas that are critical to your success or failure in school: your 10, your reading and communication skills, and your study habits.

III. Reading Comprehension (30 points)

Directions: There are 2 passages in this part. Each passage is followed by some questions or unfinished statements. For each often there are 4 choices marked A, B, C and D. You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

With the rise of remote work, digital communication has become essential. However, misunderstandings often occur due to the lack of non-verbal cues. For instance, a brief email may be perceived as cold or rude, while excessive emojis might undermine professionalism. Studies show that 65% of remote workers experience communication issues weekly.

To bridge this gap, experts recommend three strategies: First, clarify intentions explicitly. Instead of "Please review soon," specify "Please review by 5 PM Friday." Second, choose appropriate channels. Complex discussions suit video calls; quick updates fit instant messaging. Third, acknowledge cultural differences. A direct request considered efficient in some cultures may seem abrupt in others.

While technology accelerates information flow, human connection remains vital. As Dr. Elena Torres notes, "Empathy transforms transactions into interactions." Balancing efficiency with emotional intelligence is the new challenge for modern professionals.

1. What is the main purpose of the passage?
 - A. To criticize remote work trends
 - B. To compare communication tools
 - C. To address digital communication challenges and solutions
 - D. To analyze cultural differences in global companies
2. According to the passage, what causes misunderstandings in digital communication?
 - A. Slow internet connections
 - B. Lack of non-verbal cues
 - C. Language barriers
 - D. Inadequate training
3. Which strategy is recommended for complex discussions?
 - A. Sending detailed emails
 - B. Using video calls
 - C. Adding emojis to messages
 - D. Holding in-person meetings
4. The word "abrupt" (Paragraph 2) is closest in meaning to _____.
 - A. Polite
 - B. Efficient
 - C. Rude
 - D. Clear
5. What does Dr. Elena Torres imply about empathy?
 - A. It complicates communication.
 - B. It is less important than efficiency.
 - C. It humanizes digital interactions.
 - D. It replaces the need for clear instructions.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

In recent years, the sharing economy has grown rapidly, changing the way people live, work, and consume. Platforms like Airbnb, Uber, and TaskRabbit have made it easy for individuals to share their resources, such as homes, cars, and skills, with others. This trend has not only created new business opportunities but also brought about significant social and economic changes.

One of the main advantages of the sharing economy is its potential to promote sustainability. By sharing resources, people can make better use of what they already have, reducing waste and the need for new production. For example, instead of each person owning a car that sits idle for most of the day, car-sharing services allow multiple people to use a single vehicle, lowering carbon emissions and traffic congestion.

Another benefit is the economic empowerment it provides to individuals. Many people have been able to earn extra income by renting out their spare rooms, driving for ride-sharing companies, or offering their skills on freelance platforms. This has helped to create a more flexible and diverse job market, where people can work on their own terms.

However, the sharing economy also faces challenges. One major concern is the lack of regulation, which can lead to issues such as unfair competition, tax evasion, and safety risks. For instance, some landlords on Airbnb may violate local housing laws, and ride-sharing drivers may not meet the same safety standards as traditional taxi drivers.

To ensure the sustainable development of the sharing economy, it is essential to establish clear regulations and policies. Governments, businesses, and consumers all have a role to play in creating a fair and safe environment for this new economic model to thrive.

6. What is the main idea of the passage?
 - A. The sharing economy has no disadvantages.
 - B. The sharing economy is changing the world in many ways.
 - C. People should stop using sharing economy platforms.
 - D. Only big companies benefit from the sharing economy.
7. How does the sharing economy promote sustainability?
 - A. By increasing the production of new resources.
 - B. By encouraging people to buy more cars.
 - C. By making better use of existing resources.
 - D. By creating more waste.
8. What economic benefit does the sharing economy bring to individuals?
 - A. It helps them earn extra money.
 - B. It makes them lose their jobs.
 - C. It increases their tax burden.
 - D. It forces them to work longer hours.
9. What is one of the challenges faced by the sharing economy?
 - A. Too much regulation.

- B.Lack of competition.
C.Safety risks due to lack of regulation.
D.Too many traditional businesses.

10.What is needed for the sharing economy to develop sustainably?

- A.Less government involvement.
B.Clear regulations and policies.
C.More unregulated platforms.
D.No cooperation between governments and businesses.

You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

The traditional 9-to-5 office model is undergoing a significant transformation, largely driven by the rise of remote work. Fueled by advancements in technology (like video conferencing and cloud computing) and accelerated by global events like the pandemic, working from home or anywhere outside a central office has become not just possible, but desirable for many employees and employers.

Employees often cite benefits such as increased flexibility (better work-life balance, elimination of commute), improved focus (fewer office distractions), and reduced costs (transportation, work attire, eating out). For employers, potential advantages include access to a wider talent pool (geographical limitations removed), reduced overhead costs (smaller offices or none at all), and sometimes increased productivity.

However, remote work also presents challenges. Maintaining team cohesion and a strong company culture can be difficult without face-to-face interaction. Communication can sometimes suffer from misunderstandings without visual cues. Employees might struggle with isolation or the blurring of boundaries between work and personal life. Managers need to adapt their leadership styles to focus on results and trust rather than physical presence.

Despite these challenges, the trend towards remote and hybrid work models seems likely to continue. Companies are experimenting with different approaches to find the right balance that maximizes employee satisfaction, collaboration, and productivity in this new era of work.

1. What is the main factor driving the change in the traditional office model?
 - A. Employee demands for higher salaries.
 - B. Advancements in technology and global events.
 - C. Government regulations on working hours.
 - D. Increased cost of office space.
2. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a benefit of remote work for employees?
 - A. Better work-life balance.
 - B. Fewer distractions.
 - C. Higher salary potential.
 - D. Saving money on commuting.
3. What potential benefit does remote work offer employers regarding hiring?
 - A. They can pay lower salaries.
 - B. They can hire people from anywhere.
 - C. They require less training for new hires.
 - D. It simplifies the interview process.
4. According to the passage, what is a major challenge for companies with remote workers?
 - A. Providing necessary equipment.
 - B. Ensuring internet security.
 - C. Maintaining team spirit and company culture.
 - D. Monitoring employee working hours accurately.
5. What does the passage suggest about the future of remote work?
 - A. It will completely replace office work soon.
 - B. It is likely to remain a significant trend.
 - C. Its challenges will outweigh the benefits.
 - D. It is only suitable for specific industries.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

In an age saturated with information, the ability to think critically has become more crucial than ever. Critical thinking is not simply accumulating facts; it's the disciplined process of actively and skillfully conceptualizing, applying, analyzing, synthesizing, and evaluating information gathered from observation, experience, reflection, reasoning, or communication. It involves questioning assumptions, recognizing biases (both our own and others'), examining evidence logically, and drawing well-reasoned conclusions.

Developing strong critical thinking skills offers significant advantages. It enhances problem-solving abilities by enabling individuals to identify the root causes of issues and evaluate potential solutions effectively. It improves decision-making by encouraging a thorough examination of options and consequences. In academic settings, it fosters deeper learning and the ability to construct sound arguments. In daily life, it empowers individuals to be more informed consumers of news and advertising, less susceptible to manipulation and misinformation.

Educational institutions play a vital role in nurturing critical thinking. Moving beyond rote memorization, curricula should emphasize analysis, interpretation, evaluation, and argumentation. Students should be encouraged to ask "why?" and "how do we know?", to engage in debates, and to support their claims with evidence. Ultimately, fostering critical thinking is about equipping individuals with the intellectual tools to navigate complexity and make sound judgments independently.

6. What is the core definition of critical thinking provided in the passage?
 - A. Memorizing large amounts of information quickly.
 - B. Agreeing with experts without question.
 - C. An active process of analyzing and evaluating information.
 - D. Relying solely on personal experience for judgments.
7. Which of the following is NOT listed as a component of critical thinking?
 - A. Questioning assumptions.
 - B. Recognizing biases.
 - C. Accepting information at face value.
 - D. Examining evidence logically.
8. How does critical thinking specifically help with problem-solving?
 - A. By making decisions faster.
 - B. By helping find the cheapest solution.
 - C. By identifying the real causes of problems.
 - D. By avoiding problems altogether.

9. What benefit of critical thinking is highlighted in relation to daily life?

- A. It makes people more popular.
- B. It helps people earn more money.
- C. It makes people less likely to be fooled by false information.
- D. It guarantees success in personal relationships.

10. What shift in educational approach does the passage suggest to foster critical thinking?

- A. Focusing more on memorization techniques.
- B. Reducing homework assignments.
- C. Emphasizing analysis, evaluation, and evidence-based argument.
- D. Increasing the use of standardized testing.

Directions: There are 10 blanks in the following passage. For each blank there are 4 choices marked A, B, C and D. You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the passage. Then mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

In our daily lives, small actions often have profound impacts. One day, I witnessed an incident that deeply changed my 1 about kindness. A young man was struggling to carry heavy boxes into a building. Suddenly, a stranger stopped and offered help. 2 took only five minutes, but the young man's gratitude was immense.

This event reminded me that kindness doesn't require grand gestures. 3, it can be as simple as holding a door or smiling at a neighbor. Such acts create a chain reaction: the person who receives help is more 4 to help others later. Psychologists call this the "ripple effect."

5, I decided to apply for a volunteer position at a community center. During my interview, I mentioned the stranger's story. To my surprise, the manager said, "That stranger was our former volunteer! His attitude 6 why we value small acts here." I realized then that my application was 7 by that moment.

The 8 taught me that everyone can shape their environment. 9 you think your action is insignificant, it may inspire someone unexpectedly. Life is not about waiting for change; it's about 10 change through consistent efforts. As the saying goes, "The smallest deed is better than the grandest intention."

III. Reading Comprehension (30 points)

Directions: There are 2 passages in this part. Each passage is followed by some questions or unfinished statements. For each often there are 4 choices marked A, B, C and D. You are required to choose the ONE that best fits into the statement. Mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

Listening is an extremely complex communicative activity. In order to have a better understanding, to anticipate what is coming is very important. An effective listener should continuously develop more or less specific readiness for what will come next. If a listener hears what he has expected, it will be much easier for him to receive the information. But if what he hears is totally out of his expectation, he will fail to get the message.

The skill to anticipate what is coming in listening comprehension depends largely on the listener's familiarity with the theme (主题) of the message. It also depends on the listener's knowledge of the speaker as well as the situation.

Obviously, when we listen to something that we already have some information about, it is generally much easier for us to take in the new information. Therefore, pre-listening preparation seems to play an important role in increasing our comprehension. Before actual listening, we could perhaps first give some thought to the topic, discuss it with others, and then read some related material and do some vocabulary work. If we could make ourselves fully prepared for the coming talks or lectures, we are more likely to become effective listeners.

Of course, readiness beforehand is not at all enough. Active thinking must take place all the way through. In fact, we should always try to think ahead of the speaker.

1. The passage is most possibly taken from _____.
 A. a novel
 B. a textbook
 C. a news report
 D. a fashion magazine
2. What is the first paragraph mainly about?
 A. How to think actively in listening comprehension.
 B. How to develop specific readiness before listening.
 C. The skills in anticipating in listening comprehension.
 D. The importance of anticipating in listening comprehension.
3. The skill to anticipate in listening comprehension depends largely on _____.
 A. the listener's emotion
 B. the difficulty of the message
 C. the listener's communicative skills
 D. The listener's familiarity with the topic
4. In order to anticipate, the first thing to do before actual listening may be _____.
 A. do some vocabulary work
 B. think about the topic
 C. read some related material
 D. discuss the topic with others
5. What is the author's attitude towards anticipating in listening comprehension?
 A. Neutral.
 B. Positive.
 C. Negative.
 D. Critical.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

What makes Americans spend nearly half their food dollars on meals away from home? The answers lie in the way Americans live today. During the first few decades of the twentieth century, canned and other convenience foods freed the family cook from full-time duty at the kitchen range.

Then, in the 1940s, work in the wartime defense plants took more women out of the home than ever before, setting the pattern of the working wife and mother. Unless family members pitch in with food preparation, women are not fully liberated (解放) from that chore.

It's easier to pick up a bucket of fried chicken on the way home from work or take the family out for pizzas or burgers than to start opening cans or heating up frozen dinners after a long, hard day. Also nowadays, the rising divorce rate means that there are more single working parents with children to feed. And many young adults and elderly people, as well as unmarried and divorced mature people, live alone rather than as a part of a family unit and don't want to bother cooking for one. Fast food is appealing because it is fast, it doesn't require any dressing up, it offers a "fun" break in the daily routine, and the outlay of money seems small. It can be eaten in the car-sometimes picked up at a drive-in window without even getting out-or on the run. Even if it is brought home to eat, there will never be any dirty dishes to wash because of the handy disposable wrappings. Children, especially, love fast food because it's finger food, no struggling with knives and forks, no annoying instructions from adults about table manners.

6. Americans enjoy fast food mainly because _____.
 A. it can be eaten in the car
 B. it is much more tasty than home-made food
 C. one only uses his fingers while eating it
 D. it is time-saving and convenient.
7. the expression "pitch in with" (Para. 2) probably means _____.
 A. complain
 B. enjoy
 C. help
 D. deny
8. Many Americans are eating out and not cooking at home nowadays because _____.
 A. they want to make a change after eating the same food for years at home
 B. the food made outside home tastes better than food cooked at home
 C. many of them live alone or don't like taking trouble to cook

D. American women refuse to cook at home due to women's liberation movement

9. According to the text, a drive-in window is a

- A. car window from which you can see the driver
- B. window in the restaurant from which you get your meal in the car
- C. place where you check the mechanic condition of your car
- D. entrance where you return the used plates after eating.

10. It can be inferred that children

After six months of living in New Zealand, I realized one thing. Despite my 1 for greater contact with local students, unless I initiated the contact, it wouldn't happen. Local students are not interested in contacts with the international students, because they regard us as shy, 2 and sometimes snobby (势利的) people. Of course we know that's not true. I want to change their opinions.

After 3 the problem, I put on my "confidence mask" each morning and walked around with a smile on my face. I chatted with people whenever I had the chance. I showed that I was not afraid to 4 them, and that I was worthy of being a friend.

A side-effect of my 5 confidence was that my emotions occasionally broke down. Only in the 6 of my room, where no one could see, would I reveal my real emotions. All the rejections, funny looks, and 7 behind my back calling me a weirdo (古怪的人) melted into tears. Once that was done, I would put on my confidence mask once again and start anew day.

It finally worked. My name became known throughout the school as I appeared to be 8 and active. Slowly, I discovered that I no longer needed to put on my confidence mask. I had real friends. Instead of dragging myself to school and 9 to be happy, I was truly happy. I could not believe it when I was elected to the student government as Deputy Head boy the first international student to receive the title.

From my experience in New Zealand, I believe one thing will always be true: If you try your best to reach your goals, you'll achieve your 10 dreams.

Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

Do you ever wake up in the morning and think, "Wow, I'd actually rather trip and fall than go to school"? Not always to that extent, but that is how school made me feel.

Most teenagers have the same feeling towards getting up at the crack of dawn five days a week and heading to the miserable schools by bus. For me, school was never easy. The majority of my classes were B level, and I still struggled. Math and science were horrific. An hour of math made me feel like a day of murder, where I retained absolutely no information when I went home and did my homework.

The main reason I switched to the online school was to follow my dreams of being able to work and not to feel restricted by the school routine. I haven't seen or talked to most of my classmates since I left, I didn't relate to them on the level. Everyone was talking about their boyfriends, who they hooked up with or how drunk they got, while I wanted to talk about my job or how excited I was to go back to New York. Most of my friends are older than me.

Online school has given me a reason not to hate school and a reason to wake up every day, and I definitely don't come home crying anymore. I can travel when I need to and I don't have to have the flu many times a year as an excuse to miss school! I've lost friends from transferring, but I've gained a new sense of who I am and the opportunities I'm lucky enough to have in my life. Public school is great for some, but others need an excuse to differ from the crowd. Nothing is more important than being happy and having a purpose in life. Online school was the right choice for me, and if you haven't considered it yet, maybe it's time you do too.

1. The first paragraph implies that the writer _____.
 A. couldn't go to school for being hurt in a fall
 B. preferred to travel rather than go to school
 C. didn't want to go to school very much
 D. expected to go to school early in the morning
2. The writer went to online school mainly because she _____.
 A. couldn't finish her homework in time
 B. was prejudiced by her science teacher
 C. broke the school rules too many times
 D. wanted to be free to do what she liked
3. Why didn't the writer want to keep in touch with her friends?
 A. They are always talking about something rubbish.
 B. They often got the writer wrong in their relationships.
 C. They like to get drunk with their old friends.
 D. They aren't willing to do a job in New York.
4. What is the most important about online school for the writer?
 A. The disappearance of having school
 B. The happiness of finding a life purpose
 C. The high grade of English
 D. The freedom to travel.
5. What is the main idea of the passage?
 A. My experience of online school.
 B. My opinion on science.
 C. My decision to switch to online school.
 D. My loss of friendship.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

"Time is a problem for kids," says a news report for a new Swiss watch. Children in some countries

"learn time slowly" because "they don't wear watches" and "parents don't really know how to teach them time". The kids grow up with this handicap and become adults—and then can't get to work on time. Is there an answer to this problem? of course—it's the Flik Flak, made by a famous Swiss watch company.

The Flik Flak is being marketed as something teaching watch for children aged 4 to 10. The watch itself does not teach kids how to tell time, of course it merely "captures their imagination" by presenting the "hour" hand as a beautiful red girl named Flak and the "minute" hand as a tall blue boy named Flik. Flik points to corresponding "blue" minutes on the dial, while Flak points to red hour numbers. The characters and the colors combined with parental help, are supposed to teach young children how to tell time.

The watch comes equipped with a standard battery and a nylon band. Peter Lipkin, the United States sales manager for the Flik Flak, calls it kid proof: if it gets dirty you can throw the whole watch in the washing machine. The product is being sold in select department stores in Europe, Asia and the United States for a suggested price of $25. Parents who buy the watch may discover that it is one thing for kids to tell time; it's quite another for them to be on time.

6. From the news report we know that _____.
 A. parents are patient when teaching children time
 B. parents have little idea of how to teach children time
 C. children tend to learn time quickly
 D. children enjoy wearing the Flik Flak watch
7. The author doesn't seem to believe _____.
 A. children will be on time if they have learned how to tell time
 B. a Flik Flak can help parents teach their children how to tell time
 C. the Flik Flak can capture children's imagination
 D. The Flik Flak is being marketed as teaching watch for children aged 4 to 10
8. The word "handicap" (Para. 1) means _____.
 A. displeasure

Passage 1

Questions 1-5 are based on the following passage.

In recent years, the concept of "slow living" has gained increasing popularity around the world. Unlike the fast-paced lifestyle that many people are used to—where work deadlines, endless meetings, and busy schedules leave little time for rest—slow living encourages individuals to take a step back, prioritize what truly matters, and savor the small moments in life.

Proponents of slow living argue that it brings numerous benefits to both physical and mental health. For example, taking time to prepare and enjoy a home-cooked meal instead of grabbing fast food can improve digestion and reduce stress. Spending time outdoors, such as taking a walk in the park or gardening, can lower anxiety and boost mood by exposing people to fresh air and natural light. Additionally, slow living allows people to build deeper connections with family and friends, as they have more time to engage in meaningful conversations and shared activities.

However, adopting a slow living lifestyle is not without challenges. In a society that often values productivity and "hustle culture," many people feel guilty for taking time off or slowing down. They worry that they will fall behind in their careers or miss out on opportunities. Moreover, the convenience of modern technology—such as instant messaging and online shopping—makes it easy to stay connected and busy at all times, making it hard to disconnect and embrace slowness.

Despite these challenges, more and more people are choosing to incorporate elements of slow living into their daily lives. Some start by setting aside 15 minutes each morning to drink coffee without checking their phones, while others reduce their work hours to have more time for hobbies. By making small, gradual changes, individuals can experience the benefits of slow living without feeling overwhelmed.

1. What is the main idea of the first paragraph?
 - A. The fast-paced lifestyle is popular among people.
 - B. Slow living is becoming more and more popular globally.
 - C. People have no time to rest due to busy work.
 - D. Slow living helps people prioritize important things.
2. Which of the following is NOT a benefit of slow living mentioned in the passage?
 - A. Improving digestion by eating home-cooked meals.
 - B. Reducing anxiety through outdoor activities.
 - C. Helping people make more money in their careers.
 - D. Strengthening relationships with family and friends.
3. Why do some people feel guilty about slow living?
 - A. They think it is a waste of time to cook at home.
 - B. They are afraid of falling behind in work or missing opportunities.
 - C. They don't like the feeling of being disconnected from others.
 - D. They find it hard to change their old living habits.
4. What do people usually do to start slow living according to the passage?
 - A. Quit their jobs to have more free time.
 - B. Make big changes to their lifestyle immediately.
 - C. Begin with small and gradual changes.
 - D. Spend all their time on hobbies instead of working.
5. What can we infer from the passage?
 - A. Slow living will replace the fast-paced lifestyle soon.
 - B. Modern technology makes slow living impossible.
 - C. It takes a lot of courage to embrace slow living.
 - D. Small changes can help people enjoy the benefits of slow living.

Passage 2

Questions 6-10 are based on the following passage.

"A messy desk affects kids' study efficiency," notes a research report from a Japanese stationery brand. Students in many schools "struggle with organizing school supplies" because "they lack proper storage tools" and "teachers rarely teach them sorting skills". These children carry this trouble into their teenage years—and then struggle to manage homework and deadlines. Is there a solution to this issue? Absolutely—it's the EcoShelf, developed by a well-known Japanese stationery company.

The EcoShelf is being promoted as a "study organizer" for students aged 6 to 12. The shelf itself doesn't automatically organize supplies, of course; it simply "spark kids' interest in tidying" by dividing the space into three color-coded sections: a blue compartment for notebooks, a green one for pencils and erasers, and a yellow one for small items like stickers or rulers. The clear labels and bright colors, along with teachers' guidance, are meant to help young students learn how to sort their school things.

The EcoShelf comes with a detachable design and is made of durable, non-toxic plastic. Maria Tanaka, the Asian sales director for the EcoShelf, calls it "student-friendly": if it gets stained, you can wipe the surface with a wet cloth, and if a part breaks, you can replace just that part instead of the whole shelf. The product is now sold in major bookstores in Japan, South Korea, and China for a recommended price of ¥120. Parents who purchase the shelf may find that it's one thing for kids to organize their supplies; it's quite another for them to keep the shelf tidy long-term.

6. What do we learn from the research report?
 - A. Teachers often teach students sorting skills.
 - B. Students are good at organizing school supplies.
 - C. Parents have effective ways to help kids tidy up.
 - D. Students lack proper tools to organize their supplies.

In recent years, more and more students choose to study online. It is flexible and allows learning at any time. However, online learning also has its ____1____. One of the biggest problems is that you cannot get immediate help from teachers ____2____ you meet difficulties in study.

I ____3____ a personal experience last semester. I signed up for an online English course. The introduction said it had professional tutors and rich resources, and the cost was much lower than offline classes. I joined it without ____4____. When the course started, I was full of hope. But my hope didn't ____5____ long. The video lessons were too fast for me to follow, and the tutor replied to my questions slowly—sometimes even after 24 hours. It was a big letdown.

This experience taught me a valuable ____6____. Now, I always check the course details carefully and, more importantly, I read the reviews from other students. Their feedback can give you a much clearer idea about the teaching quality and tutor response speed.

____7____, I also pay attention to the course support service. A good support service gives you a "backup" if you have trouble with the learning process. Some platforms offer 24-hour online support, while others may only reply during work hours. It's important to know this ____8____ you sign up for a course.

____9____, online learning is a useful way to study, but it requires us to be wise learners. We should not be attracted by low costs or fancy introductions. Doing a little research ahead can save us from disappointment and wasting time in the long run. Remember, if a course seems too perfect to be true, it ____10____ is.
